

PARTNERSHIPS

We match needs with resources to benefit employers, students, as well as the Tulsa community. To do this, we are committed to helping trained, skilled, and motivated students transition from the classroom to a successful working environment. We hope to grow partnerships at all levels to enhance achievement and economic benefit.

TRANSITIONS

A lot of our students have minimal work experience. Most are competent and comfortable with technology, yet lack experience and can be uncomfortable in new surroundings. Inexperience can sometimes impede a successful transition from classroom to the workforce.

TIME

There is no substitute for time when it comes to building relationships and creating trust. Our students spend hundreds of hours in classrooms and shops, working with instructors to refine their skills. Their confidence and performance levels in our classrooms, labs and shops can be a more accurate picture of their potential as an employee than interviews or pre-employment tests may indicate.

ACCESS

Observing our students attitudes, motivation, attention to detail, work ethic, and other attributes is one of the best ways to tell which students are a good fit for any organization. When employers regularly observe training, it adds accountability and improves both instructor and student performance.

EXPECTATIONS

We set a high bar for performance. Our culture reflects values of personal responsibility, accountability, integrity, and loyalty. We expect every student to consistently deliver high levels of performance, give their best effort toward successful completion of the training and be a dynamic and productive employee in their chosen field.
